BOMA SAN FRANCISCO'S TORY BRUBAKER RECOGNIZED BY THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVES

San Francisco, July 10, 2008 – The Building Owners and Managers Association (BOMA) of San Francisco announced today that Ms. Tory Brubaker, BOMA SF's Membership Services Director, has achieved the Certified Association Executive (CAE) credential from the American Society of Association Executives.

“BOMA San Francisco takes pride in Tory's achievement,” said BOMA San Francisco Executive Vice President Marc Intermaggio. “She continually demonstrates a high level of professional knowledge, ethical fitness and leadership in the field of association management.”

The CAE credential is the highest professional credential in the Association industry. To earn the CAE credential, candidates must pass a challenging examination on all aspects of association management. Earning the accreditation requires significant time dedicated to study and preparation, and less than five percent of all association professionals who take the exam pass it to achieve the accreditation. The certification must be renewed every three years through additional studies and leadership activities, which means earning the CAE credential is an honor that is neither easily earned nor maintained.

About BOMA San Francisco

BOMA San Francisco is a not-for-profit commercial real estate trade association. BOMA's labor, legislative and public affairs services create better business conditions for commercial real estate owners and managers, and its training programs enhance effective building operations, which add value to the bottom line. BOMA San Francisco is a founding member of BOMA California, and it is federated with BOMA International, an organization consisting of 100 local associations throughout North America as well as several, affiliated BOMA groups worldwide.
